

Lease Management Software Firm, Odessa Technologies, Inc. Celebrates Its 100th Hire

August 15, 2007

Vanguard of web-based lease management software Odessa Technologies, Inc., the maker of LeaseWave[®], grows their team of lease management innovators.

Philadelphia, PA - Odessa Technologies, Inc., creators of lease management and fleet management software announced the 100th addition to their team of finance software solution experts. While the company has grown strongly each year for the past decade, recent growth has been due to both increasing recognition in the leasing industry and sustained internal efforts to attract new talent. Throughout FY2006, Odessa has made company expansion a top priority and has aggressively pursued the best candidates in both the leasing and software industries.

New employment in the software development and support departments is central to Odessa's overall mission: providing a comprehensive and reliable lease management software product that serves the equipment, vehicle and fleet leasing industry. Odessa employs the brightest minds in software development and engineering to guarantee that its lease management software suite is the best on the market. Working from a strong, industry-standard software platform (Microsoft .NET 2.0), Odessa's software design and engineering departments ensure that LeaseWave[®], the company's flagship lease management product, is always at the cutting edge of both technology and functionality. Additionally, by distributing its staff between two offices - one in Bangalore, India and one in Philadelphia, PA - Odessa Technologies ensures client and technical support literally around the clock. Indeed, Odessa prides itself on staffing a committed support team which strives to provide timely solutions to clients' concerns.

Ruchira Chakravarty, Manager, Human Resources for Odessa Technologies, prides the company on being able to expand while still meeting current employees' needs, without leaving anyone behind. "We take employees with us and make them stakeholders in our growth. Not only do they feel involved and responsible for bringing the correct people on-board, but they also help smooth the transition of new hires into, what we call, the 'Odessa way'.

Relating to the company's culture is extremely important as it gives you a sense of belonging. That process begins on the day of joining; our goal is to provide every Odessa team member an environment that is conducive to both professional and personal growth.
